Margaret Remiger Promoted to Key Community Employment Position

MRCI WorkSource, one of Minnesota's largest employers of people with disabilities, has promoted Margaret Remiger to the Community Employment Manager position.

MANKATO - MRCI WorkSource, the fourth largest employer in the Mankato area, has recently promoted Margaret Remiger to Community Employment Manager - a key position that provides management and oversight of all community work and placement activities.

Remiger, who retired from Target Corporation as a store manager, has extensive experience and knowledge of the regional business community. In her new role, she will continue to build relationships with current MRCI WorkSource employment partners, while introducing the services and opportunities that MRCI provides to new employers.

"We're extremely excited to have Margaret in this role," said Brian Benshoof, Chief Operating Officer at MRCI WorkSource. "Margaret has worked with the local business community for years, and has tremendous skills in the areas of management and communication. By combining our large community work program and placement activities, we're expecting stronger coordination that will result in solid job opportunities for individuals with disabilities."

MRCI began in Mankato, Minnesota in 1953 with the mission of rehabilitating individuals with disabilities. Today, MRCI is privileged to participate in the lives of more than 3,000 individuals located throughout southern Minnesota including the southern Twin Cities Metro Area. The organization has grown from playing a role in several local economies, to becoming a major part of the region's economy. More importantly, MRCI WorkSource is serving more people than ever before through innovative employment programs.
